In 1955, a black woman in Montgomery, Alabama named Rosa Parks sat in the front of the bus. She refused to move to the back of the bus and got arrested.

Martin Luther King, Jr. organized the Montgomery Bus Boycott.

A boycott is a form of protest where individuals refuse to buy products or services or participate in an event until changes are made.

Everyone who participated in the Montgomery Bus Boycott refused to ride on public buses until Black people were no longer required to sit in the back of the bus.

The boycott ended when the Supreme Court said that segregation on public buses is against the Constitution.
